Here are some things to keep in mind for your first meeting with your criminal defense attorney:

Ask Questions:

You are hiring this attorney – not the other way around. Feel free to ask as many questions as you want before making a decision to hire this attorney or to look for someone else. Here are some questions we recommend you consider asking:

- What is your experience in handling cases similar to mine?
- What is your success rate in similar cases?
- What are the potential outcomes for my case?
- What challenges do you foresee?
- How do your fees and billing structure work?
- Do you know the local court system and judges in my jurisdiction?
- Do you have a team or resources to support my case?
- How and how often will we communicate about the progress of my case?

Your Ideal Outcome for Your Case:

Before meeting with our criminal defense team, it's important to have a clear understanding of your desired case outcome.

Your Budget:

Discuss your budget and legal fees with your attorney during your first meeting.
